HAT does 1920 hold in store for the world? is the question which French journalists asked Mme, de Teleme, the French secress, successor to the celebrated Mme. de Thebes.

"Thanks to Neptune and Mercury, I think I am able to predict a great commericial, artistic, scientific and literary movement. France will have to watch its external affairs. It is only toward the end of May that public opinion will regain its strength and really feel it necessary to work.

"The year will mark the end of Bolshevism. At the end of the year Russia will have regained some of its former social aspect. There will be social trouble of a fairly violent nature in Spain and Portugal. As for Germany, her qualities of work and steadfastness will enable her to regain her, international relations, but it will be with quite a different spirit. There will be much difficulty in governmental affairs of the United States and also grave working class upheavals.
